

The Rain Cloud

One sunny, summer morning, a fluffy cloud sailed by.

When all at once he saw a field,
that really did look dry.

"All out!" he cried, "There's work to do."

A million raindrops jumped right out and called, "We have come to water you!"

